

Local Government Pension Scheme Election to join the 50/50 section

What's the 50/50 section?

There are two sections in the LGPS from 1 April 2014 – the main section and the 50/50 section. In the main section you pay full contributions and your pension builds up as a 1/49th of your pay*. In the 50/50 section, you pay half contributions and your pension builds up as a 1/98th of your pay. However, if you move to the 50/50 section you would still get ill health protection and death in service benefits as if you were a member of the main section.

You can move to the 50/50 section at any time. To join, you must tell your employer by filling in this form. You'll move to the 50/50 section in the next available pay period after your form has been received by your employer. Your employer's contribution will remain at the full rate.

If you have more than one job you can join the 50/50 section in one, some, or all your jobs. Where you have more than one employer, a separate form must be completed and returned to each employer.

Additional contributions

If you move to the 50/50 section and you are buying extra pension in the LGPS by paying additional pension contributions (APCs) or Shared Cost APCs (where the cost is split between you and your employer) the APC contract must cease. You also can't take out a new APC contract to buy extra pension whilst you are in the 50/50 section.

However, if you're paying SCAPCs to buy lost pension from a period of authorised unpaid leave or unpaid child related leave, these contracts can continue, and new contracts can be taken out. This is also the case if you're paying APCs (full cost to you) to buy lost pension because of a trade dispute or unpaid authorised leave of absence.

Additional voluntary contributions (AVCs) aren't affected if you move to the 50/50 section.

Can my employer ask me to join the 50/50 section?

No, if you're asked or made to join the 50/50 section against your wishes, tell The Pensions Regulator at: www.thepensionsregulator.gov.uk/contact-us

How long can I stay in the 50/50 section?

The 50/50 section is supposed to be a short-term option if you need to save a bit of extra money. However, your employer will bring you back into the main section of the LGPS every three years under auto enrolment regulations. Your employer will tell you when this is about to happen, but you can re-join the 50/50 section by filling out another form.

If during a month you're off work without pay, because of illness or authorised parental leave, and you're still off with no pay for a second month, your employer will move you back into the main section of the LGPS. This means you'll build up full pension benefits, even though you won't be paying pension contributions. When you return to work, you can move back into the 50/50 section.

You can move back into the main section of the LGPS at any point, if you're under 75 and are still in a job that offers membership of the scheme. To re-join the main section, you can fill in an 'opt in' form, which is available at www.shropshirecountypensionfund.co.uk. Once your employer receives the form, your full contributions will start being taken the next month. If you're in the 50/50 section in more than one job, you can move back into the main section in all or some of your jobs.

If you begin a second job with your current employer or move to a new job under another LGPS employer, you'll be put into the main section of the LGPS for that new job. You can then choose to join the 50/50 section.

Automatic enrolment

To meet the automatic enrolment rules of the Pensions Act 2008, your employer must automatically bring you back into the main section of the LGPS every three years. You can choose to re-join the 50/50 section again at that time.

of ordinary maternity leave, ordinary adoption leave or paternity leave, and I'm still on no pay at the beginning of the next pay period, my employer will then move me back into the main section of the LGPS. I have the right to make a further 50/50 election at that time if I wish to do so.
